I was given an
Accuvoice V100 M "Mini" TV Speaker for review.

It is a product that is made by the ZVOX company.

It is an addition for your TV, smart or otherwise.

It is smaller than sound bars I've seen in retail stores, but it fits nicely below my TV, beside my Dish controller.

The kit comes with a remote (yet another one!) that has five buttons on it: power, sound up and down, mute and Accuvoice. That last button has a remarkable ability to increase voice when a program has both music and voice and it is hard to hear the voice. There are six levels of music suppression, so you can get more voice and less music when you want it.

I've never seen this feature on any other device but it may become more popular as users realize that such a device is available.

The kit also has several connectors. Only one is used, but you must refer to the brief manual to determine which one to use to connect to your television set. I had some trouble with this and had to call their support to get the job done. Support was extremely helpful and very patient.

The soundbar includes its own speakers, which are a bit better than my TV's speakers.

With Dish, my Dish remote turns on both my TV and the Dish controller. The ZVOX's remote turns on the sound bar. There are two LEDs that let you know what the status is. One is blue, which indicates power on, volume down or mute, and the other is amber, which indicates volume up. When you push Accuvoice, the blue LED shows briefly.

The sound bar is powered by a standard power cord and plug. The sound bar's dimensions are 10" X 2.5" X 3".

The company provides free shipping and a 60-day free home trial. The product has a one-year parts and labor warranty.

I'm very satisfied with this product. It provides a measure of relief for those situations where the program's voice is nearly unintelligible because of the overriding music or other background sound.
